

Cell phone use on airplanes should not be allowed. The ban should remain in place. The unnecessary frustration that non-cell phone users will experience by having to endure cell phone use on planes far outweighs the small convenience that cell phone use will provide when considering a change in the current civil, decent and appropriate policy.